

Records of the Annual Hench and Dromgold Reunion Held In Perry County, PA. From 1897 to 1912. These records contain the Genealogies of Nicholas Ickes, Johannes Hench, Zachariah Rice, John Hartman, Thomas Dromgold and kindred families who were among the early settlers of Chester Co., and served in the Revolution. Compiled by (Mrs.) Lelia Dromgold Emig, 1913, The United Evangelical Press Harrisburg, Pa.

John Hartman

This genealogy was prepared by John M. Hartman, of Mt. Airy, Pa., and J. W. Rice, and read by Rev. J. W. Meminger, at the reunion held Aug. 10, 1905.

In August, 1750, the ship, Royal Union, Clement Nicholson, commander, arrived at the port of Philadelphia, from Rotterdam, on which were seven emigrants, namely: Johannas Hartman, his wife, Margaret Hartman, son Peter Hartman, second son, Jacob Hartman, daughters, Marie Apolonia, Elizabeth, and Catherine.

On the 15th of August, Johannas took the oath of allegiance to King George, of Great Britain. They remained in Philadelphia a short time, and in 1753 moved to Pikeland, Chester County, Pa., where Johannas had taken up a tract of land under the Penn government.

Jacob, the subject of this paper, is found in Pikeland tax list 1774 inmate, 1779 inmate. In 1781, he is taxed for 130 acres of land, 2 horses, and 2 cattle. In 1785 his federal tax was one pound, 18 shillings, and one pence.

The emigrant Hartman had built himself a log house on his property, which he replaced with a substantial stone building in after years.

In 1781 Jacob moved in one end of the Hartman homestead; the emigrant and his second wife lived in the other end.

Jacob married Sallie Sahler, or Saylor, by tradition, some say Souder.

His son Peter was born about 1772. Phoebe Ann, Margaret, John, Elizabeth, and Samuel were born in Chester County.

By the will of Johanna, Jacob was to have the plantation, but just prior to this a heavy loss fell on all the inhabitants of Pikeland, as the following will show.

The land forming the township of East and West Pikeland was patented by William Penn to Joseph Pike, merchant, of Cork, Ireland, Dec. 3, 1705, and contained 11,116 acres and allowance of 6 per cent.

Joseph Pike died 1727 and devised his lands in Pennsylvania to Elizabeth, his wife. She died in 1733, and devised the land to her son, Richard Pike. He died in 1752 and devised the land to his kinsmen, Samuel Hoare and Nathaniel Newbury, merchants, of London, England.

In 1756 Samuel Hoare purchased the interest of Nathaniel Newbury. On Dec. 3, 1773, Samuel Hoare, by his attorney, Amos Strettle, conveyed Pikeland to Andrew Allen, of Pennsylvania, taking a mortgage thereon for sixteen hundred pounds, part of the purchase money. Andrew Allen sold and conveyed parcels of this land to one hundred and fifteen persons, among whom was Johannas Hartman, but Allen failing to pay off the mortgage to Hoare, the latter brought suit and the whole was sold to Ezekiel Leonard, sheriff, and purchased by Hoare, to whom the deed was made Aug. 26, 1789.

Many of the settlers by the payment of additional sums, were enabled to retain their lands and improvements, but some lost all they had.

By a power of attorney, dated Dec. 2, 1789, Samuel Hoare constituted Benjamin Chew, Alexander Wilcocks, and Benjamin Chew, Jr., his agents, to lease or sell his lands.

By the will of Johannas Hartman, in 1785, Jacob was to get the plantation or farm. Unfortunately the mortgage of Samuel Hoare ousted Jacob, compelling him to secure a home elsewhere.

About the year 1791 there was a strong tide of emigrants from Montgomery and Chester Counties for the Cumberland Valley, as the Indians were pretty well cleared out of that country, land being cheap at that place.

Among these emigrants were Jacob Hartman, Frederick Shull, Zachariah Rice, Jacob Hipple, John Hench, and others. Finding the lands nearly all taken up, they moved up into the upper end of the then Cumberland County, but now Perry County. Jacob Hartman took up a tract of land in Saville Township, Perry County, and built thereon a substantial log house and barn and got his farm into good working order. The soil was sandy and did not prove so good as the rich lands in Chester and Montgomery Counties.

In their selection of lands they were guided by an old rule, that where you find large timber the soil will be good, but this rule did not apply to Buffalo Valley, which is in Saville Township.

This log house was built of hewn timber and stood the storms of a hundred of years. It was torn down in 1900. In the centre of the building was a large stone chimney, with one large fire-place in it on the kitchen side, and a small fire-place on the opposite side in the bed room, and another small fire-place in the parlor.

The old clock ticked away for about eighty years, when it was removed to the home of Levi Wibley, who sold it to Harry W. Hartman, of Ellwood, Pa., who is a great-grandson of Jacob.

The log barn is still in use. The Buffalo Creek runs in front of the house and about 500 feet off and alongside of the barn a never failing stream of water runs from the mountain. The land has a southern exposure with the Tuscarora Mountain on the north.

The famous old orchard planted by Jacob has now disappeared. One tree in particular of that orchard was called Aunt Betsy's tree, being named for one of Jacob's daughter's-in-law, Elizabeth Olwein, wife of Peter Hartman, Jacob's oldest son.

Jacob lived on the farm until after 1800, when he moved to Blain, Toboyne Township, where he died about 1823, and is buried at Blain. After the death of his first wife he married a second time Eva Marie Dunkel.

Jacob left a large amount of real estate, but when it came to be sold scarcely anything could be got for it, as times were extremely dull and money scarce. The executors had to hold the property for a long time, but the creditors getting tired of waiting, took the matter into court and caused his executors, Peter Hartman and Frederick Shull, to show why they would not sell. The final distribution took place among the heirs in 1830.

Tradition states Jacob was in the battle of Brandywine and being wounded, made a plug of grass to close the wound and staunch the flow of blood. He crawled under a bridge to prevent being taken prisoner. The Pennsylvania Archives giving a list of Revolutionary soldiers, gives two Jacob Hartmans, one leaving it at Lancaster in 1828.

Andrew Hartman, Jacob's grandson, writes from Cando, North Dakota, that Mathias, his father, told him Jacob was a Revolutionary soldier.

Jacob's father, Johanna, was a member of the committee of safety that took steps leading to the Revolutionary of 1776, so that the descendants of Jacob Hartman, wishing to gain admission to the Sons or Daughters of the Revolution, can refer to Jacob and Jacob's father as authority for adjoining that order.

In the Name of God, Amen.

I, Jacob Hartman, of the township of Toboyne, county of Cumberland, and state of Pennsylvania, farmer, being weak in body, but of sound mind, memory, and understanding, (blessed be God for the same) but considering the uncertainty of this transitory life, do make and publish this my last will and testament in manner and form following vis-principally, and first of all I command my immortal soul into the hands of God, who gave it and my body to the earth to be buried in a decent and Christian-like manner at the discretion of my executors hereafter named, and as to such worldly estate herewith it hath pleased God to bless me in this life with. I give and dispose of the same in the following manner, viz:

First. It is my will and I do order that all my just debts and funeral expenses be duly paid and satisfied as soon as conveniently can be after my decease.

Secondly. It is my will and I do order my executors hereafter named, as soon as conveniently after my decease to make sale of all my real and personal estate (except my wearing apparel) for such price or prices as may be reasonably got for the same, and I do authorize and empower my said executors to sign, seal and execute such deed or deeds of conveyance as may be necessary for granting and assuming the same to the purchaser in fee simple.

Thirdly. I give and bequeath unto my loving wife, Eva Hartman. the one-third of all the moneys arising from the sale of my personal property after deducting the expenses of putting the same to sale, and also the one-thirteenth part of all the moneys which may arise from the sale of my real estate after deducting the debts, if any there be, and the expenses of putting the same to sale, this part of the legacy to be paid to her as soon as convenient, and in equal proportion with the other heirs hereafter named.

Fourthly. It is my will and I do positively order my executors to make an equal divide of all the residue or amount of the moneys arising from the sales of my real or personal estate, or otherwise between my following named children as equal heirs, viz: Peter Hartman, Pheby Shull, Margaret Yons, John Hartman, Elizabeth Yons, Sally Yons, Samuel Hartman, William Hartman, Matthias Hartman, Jacob Hartman, Henry Hartman, and Matlania Hartman, as heirs, in common to be paid to them, or their guardian, as soon as possible for the use of the aforesaid heirs or assigns forever.

Fifthly. I order my executors to divide my wearing apparel equally between my seven sons, And lastly I nominate, constitute and appoint Peter Hartman, Frederick Shull, and William Anderson, esquire, to be the executors of this my will, hereby revoking all other wills and bequests by me made, and declaring this and no other to be my last will and testament.

In witness whereof I have this twenty-second day of July, A. D., one thousand, eight hundred and eighteen, signed, sealed, published, pronounced and declared this to be my last will and testament in the presences of the subscribing witnesses and who at my request have subscribed as witnesses.

Signed in presence of George Ebright,
John Abernathy.

Elizabeth Olwein, wife of Peter (3) Hartman, was a relative of Gen. Anthony Wayne, and inherited the push and vigor of the Wayne family. To a woman brought up in the full and plenty of an old Chester County home the change to the wilds and inconveniences of Perry County, was a great one, but she settled down to her work and kept it up to the end, leaving a splendid record as a wife, mother and friend. When her first child was about six months old she started from Buffalo Mills on horseback with her child and traveled 120 miles to visit her parents, friends and relatives in Chester County. Being a woman of good address she met with kindness all along the route.

How many women to-day would do the "likes o' that;" truly a hospital would be wanted at each end of the line. Her two youngest boys, Ben and Fred, were athletes when small. When they did something wrong Aunt Betsy would go for them with a whip, they would nm up stairs. Aunt Betsy after them, the boys would jump out of the second-story window. "You Ben !" "You Fred!" but the boys were on their way to the barn by this time for shelter. She died at the ripe old age of 88 years. The sun shines bright on the old Emanuel Graveyard, but on no grave does it shine where a wife and mother's life work was done better than that of Aunt Betsy's.

Elizabeth (4) Hartman, daughter of Peter (3) Hartman, married Samuel Shoemaker, a blacksmith and farmer. This woman had all the traits of her mother. In a conversation with Samuel Shumaker in old age he made an eulogy on her and what she had done for him that any wife would be proud of.

One of their descendants was John (5) Shoemaker, a celebrated scholar and teacher at Academia, Blairstown, N. J., well known to all the older people of this county. His son Samuel (6) was an officer of the Huntingdon, afterward cashier of the National Bank of Western Pa., at Pittsburgh, and well known for his probity and honesty.

Benjamin (4), son of Peter (3), and Elizabeth was an iron man. He ran the Oak Grove Furnace for some years and was an athlete, but he died at an earlier age than most of his relatives. His good humor was shown when nearing death by his jokes with the doctor. His wife, Penniah, a pious woman, survived him some years. Their son, Harry Watters, is a well known iron man and founder of the Hartman Steel Company of Beaver Falls. His brother, Jesse L., is prothonotary of Blair County.

Frederick (4), Benjamin's brother, was an athlete and wrestler. On one occasion when taking a drove of cattle to Philadelphia he stopped over night at Lancaster where some of his friends arranged for a wrestling match between another and himself. Fred objected to it but his friends finally prevailed on him to wrestle. Fred was only medium height and his opponent a tall and powerful man. They clinched and Fred soon found himself off his feet going up, but his feet struck the top of the stove. This threw his opponent off his balance and they fell with Fred on top. His opponent insisted on another trial. Fred having learned his opponent's points threw him over heels up, landing him on his back and knocked the wind out of him. He did not come to and his friends had to rub him and give him stimulants to revive him.

(3) Phoebe Ann, wife of Frederick Shull, was a stirring active woman and left her impress upon her children. The Shulls have contributed their sons to the cause of their country in 1776, 1812, and 1861. Who does not know her grandson. John Shull, of Saville, a quick and active man up to old age, kind, honest, and ever ready to lend a helping hand in time of need? As for his wife, who does not know her good cooking and kind genial ways? In after years those of us who may survive them will come back to the old log cabin and thank God there lived two of nature's children—John and Margaret Shull.

John (3) Hartman.

John was a butcher by trade and a general all round man, strong, powerful, he could give a good account of himself in a scrap. He made a clearing near the top of the Gap, above Ickesburg, on the road over the Tuscarora Mountain, and started a country tavern. His services were in demand at the hog butcherings about the holidays. When John indulged in too much whisky he would cry and beg his wife not to scold him. There is no trace of this clearing or tavern save a small piece of stone wall to support the bank.

It was a remarkable thing that two men should meet at this wild lonesome spot, strangers to each other. "Good morning, sir;" reply, "good morning."

"What are you looking for?"

"Hunting for the ruins of the old Hartman tavern."

"I am too, but here is all that is left of it."

"Who are you?"

"Wesley Fuller."

"Who are you?"

John M. Hartman."

Both were relatives and descendants of the original Johannas Hartman.

This tavern became well known as a place of meeting for the bullies of Perry and Juniata Counties, the lines of the two counties here joining. The bullies and their backers would meet in the back yard to decide who was the best man.
