

Dorothy C. Wilson, (6 Jun 1913 – 14 Jan 1986), Harrisburg Evening News on January 15, 1986; Provided by Laura "Randy" Wilson Fennemore

Dorothy C. Wilson, 72, of Loysville, died Tuesday at home.

She was retired employee of Perry Village; a life member, treasurer of the Ladies Aid, and Nursery Sunday School Class teacher at Tressler Memorial Lutheran Church; and a member of the Perry County Senior Citizens.

Surviving are a sister, LouAnn Lyons of Loysville; a brother, Gerald G. of Landisburg RD 2, and several nieces and nephews.

Services will be held at 11 A.M. Saturday in her church with the Rev. John D. Logan officiating. Burial will be in Restland Cemetery.

Friends may call at the church after 7 P.M. Friday.

The Geigle Funeral Home, Susquehanna Twp., is handling arrangements.

Contributor Note: Fondly known as Dort to all who knew her, she was the caretaker of the family. She always remembered everyone's birthday or anniversary with a card and was one of the first to remember a grieving family with a sympathy card. She stayed home after graduating from high school to care for her ailing mother and her new baby sister, Lou Ann. Her mother had been in poor health for many years. Dort worked at the local telephone exchange on the night shift for many years until the telephone companies consolidated and the local exchange was closed. She then helped several families, in particular, the Dr. B. P. Anderson family, by baby sitting and helping with other household chores.

Her sudden death due to a heart attack shocked everyone. She had had a history of heart disease the last few years of her life.

Her 10 nieces and nephews were very special to her. Though she never learned to drive, she would take them on bus trips with her and always had time to listen to them.

www.theperryhistorians.org